

The new UCD Sutherland School of Law, opened in November 2013, is the first purpose-built university law school in Ireland. Key features include the Clinical Legal Education Centre, Trial Court and Ceremonial Moot Court.

Law

UCD Sutherland School of Law is Ireland's largest law school, providing a solid foundation for a career either in legal practice or in one of many other rewarding fields. Our graduates have progressed to hold some of the highest legal and political offices in the State, including Chief Justice, Attorney General, Director of Public Prosecutions, Taoiseach (Prime Minister of Ireland) and Tánaiste (Deputy Prime Minister of Ireland).

Why UCD Law?

- UCD Sutherland School of Law offers world-class learning and teaching facilities in a new state-of-the-art building.
- We offer the widest range of law degrees in Ireland. You can choose to focus primarily on Law (BCL) or to combine your study of Law with either Business, History, Philosophy, Politics, Economics, Social Justice, French Law or Chinese Studies.
- Our academic staff are experts in a wide range of fields of national and international law.
- Our purpose-built Clinical Legal Education Centre (CLEC) offers specialist clinical law modules to enhance your knowledge and understanding of law, legal practice and the interaction of law with society.
- Our modern facilities include negotiation, arbitration and client consultation suites, group work areas and moot courtrooms. These innovative teaching spaces offer unrivalled possibilities for you to learn by experiencing law in practice.
- You may undertake a placement in a leading law firm or non-governmental organisation and/or conduct groundbreaking public interest research.
- You may have the opportunity to develop your foreign language skills and to experience other legal systems through our extensive international exchange programme with universities in Europe, North America, Asia and Australia.

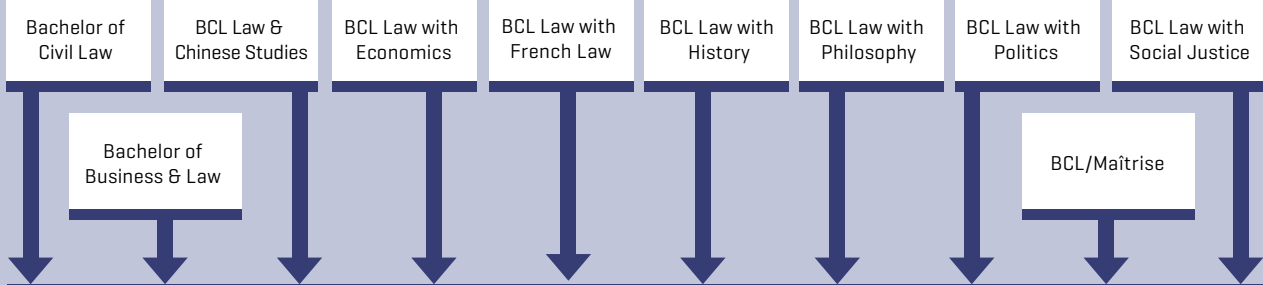

Your First Year Experience

- UCD Sutherland School of Law welcomes first year students to a friendly and supportive community. Under our Peer Mentoring and Academic Adviser schemes, current students and lecturers are assigned to each first year student in order to offer advice and answer any questions.
- You will explore the fundamentals of law by studying modules in Constitutional Law and Contract Law. In General Introduction to Legal Studies you will learn to solve legal problems by working in teams.
- Lectures are supplemented with small-group tutorial teaching to help you learn how to understand cases, to interpret legislation and, ultimately, find your own voice.
- You will be encouraged to get involved in debating and mooting (mock trials).
- You can join other students in the UCD Law Society, which organises many events.
- You may decide to participate in the UCD Student Legal Service. Run by Law students, it provides legal information clinics to students.
- Specialist careers support is provided by the School's Career Adviser to help you identify and achieve your career ambitions.

The new UCD Sutherland School of Law building

Why is this course for me?

The UCD Bachelor of Civil Law (BCL) degree enjoys a proud history and an established reputation in Ireland and abroad. The BCL degree allows you to immerse yourself in the study of law, to engage with a range of interesting legal perspectives and to acquire a profound understanding of how law works in theory and in practice.

What will I study?

First & Second Year

In first year, you'll explore some foundational areas of law including:

Law & Legislation • Contract Law • Tort Law • Constitutional Law

You'll study modules in civil and criminal procedures.

You may choose to study Sports Law.

In second year, you'll explore EU law and core areas of Irish law including:

Property Law • Company Law • Criminal Law

Third & Fourth Year

You can tailor your BCL by selecting from a wide choice of Law modules such as:

International Human Rights • Environmental Law • Intellectual Property Law • Media Law • Family Law • Commercial Law • Employment Law

In addition, our Clinical Legal Education Centre (CLEC) offers "clinical" modules which include Advocacy & Mooting, Alternative Dispute Resolution, Legal Practice and Legal Placement.

You'll attend lectures and tutorials, in addition to engaging in study and preparatory work.

KEY FACT

Many leading Irish and UK Law firms (including Arthur Cox, Matheson, A&L Goodbody, William Fry, and Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer LLP) host recruitment presentations on campus in UCD. Practical experience gained in clinical law modules may give you a competitive edge when applying for internships or traineeships.

Assessment is through a combination of end-of-semester examinations, essays and group work projects.

Career & Graduate Study Opportunities

As a BCL graduate you are well positioned to pursue a variety of careers. Many graduates go on to qualify as solicitors or barristers who practise law independently, or work in:

- Law firms in Ireland or internationally
- Large corporations as in-house lawyers
- State bodies (e.g. advisory counsel in the Attorney General's Office)
- Non-governmental organisations (NGOs)
- EU or other international institutions
- Legal research
- Academia

BCL graduates can also pursue successful non-legal careers (e.g. as diplomats, journalists, broadcasters, authors or researchers) in Ireland or abroad. Graduates can undertake postgraduate law study programmes such as the LLM and/or PhD in their area of interest.

International Study Opportunities

Many of our third year BCL students study abroad at our partner universities in:

Singapore • Milan • Toulouse • Chicago • Utrecht • Connecticut • Vienna • Miami • Uppsala • Minnesota • Stockholm • California • Exeter • Berlin • Prague • Antwerp • Canberra • Barcelona

Hannah Garvey
GRADUATE

UCD campus life is brilliant. Debating with the L&H shaped my college experience. From the trips to the Strauss Ball to the house debates, there was always an event to organise or a party to go to. I spent a year in Toulouse on Erasmus. It was a chance to practise French again and to explore a new country and legal system. The highlight for me since graduating was working in the legal department at LinkedIn. I will begin a training contract at A&L Goodbody next year. UCD Law has really opened doors for me.

Why is this course for me?

The BBL degree combines law and business into a single degree, providing you with an ideal skill-set for the commercial world and offering valuable career flexibility. BBL graduates are uniquely equipped with the analytical and advocacy skills that arise from a legal training, combined with the numeracy and financial literacy of a business degree.

What will I study?

First, Second & Third Year

During your first three years you'll study both business and law modules in equal measure and you'll learn how these two disciplines interrelate. In addition to studying core Law degree subjects, such as Contract Law, Tort Law and EU Law, you may choose from a large variety of other law modules including: Revenue Law • Commercial Law • Intellectual Property Law • Employment Law

The range of business modules includes:

Accountancy • Management • Finance • Economics • Marketing

Fourth Year

According to your preference and career plans, you can choose to specialise in Law or Business.

BBL students may choose clinical legal education modules offered at the Clinical Legal Education Centre (CLEC), including Competition Law in Practice, Alternative Dispute Resolution and Advocacy & Mooting.

Note: The intensive nature of the BBL degree means that you will not have time to take extra modules as part of UCD Horizons. You'll attend lectures and tutorials, in addition to engaging in study and preparatory work.

KEY FACT

You will study your business modules at the only Irish business school accredited by both AACSB [the principal American accreditation] and EQUIS [the leading European accreditation].

AGL Goodbody lecture theatre

Assessment is through a combination of end-of-semester examinations, essays and group work projects.

Career & Graduate Study Opportunities

BBL students can select the modules necessary for legal professional recognition, which will allow them to go on to qualify as a solicitor or barrister, and work in legal practices in Ireland or abroad. Graduates can also pursue careers in:

- Accountancy
- Finance
- Tax consultancy
- Corporate banking
- Business analysis

BBL graduates also have the option of pursuing postgraduate qualifications in either Law or Business.

International Study Opportunities

BBL students can apply to spend a semester of third year on exchange in overseas universities including:

University of New South Wales, Sydney • Leopold-Franzens-Universität Innsbruck • Università Commerciale Luigi Bocconi, Milan • Universidad Carlos III de Madrid

Florian Niesel
STUDENT

I chose to study Business and Law at UCD because I wanted to combine both legal and commercial studies in order to be able to work as a commercial lawyer in a multinational company. I wanted to improve my English and had visited Ireland during holidays before; I was aware that UCD is a very good university with a high reputation. While it was daunting to study abroad in a different language, I quickly overcame the first obstacles. I met so many Irish people on my course and people from all over the world through on-campus societies. UCD is a high-quality university where a feeling of "team-spirit" exists - you really feel like you belong.

Why is this course for me?

The new BCL [Law & Chinese Studies] allows you to undertake a degree in Irish law, whilst simultaneously acquiring a broad knowledge of Chinese law and a very high level of competence in Mandarin and Chinese legal terminology. During this degree you'll gain comparative insights which inform an enhanced critical perspective on Irish law. The third year is spent at a leading Chinese law school.

What will I study?

First & Second Year

First year focuses on the core Irish law modules of: Constitutional Law • Contract Law

This is combined with intensive Chinese language training and an introduction to Chinese culture and society.

In second year, you'll continue to build your knowledge of the foundations of Irish law, covering:

Tort • Property Law • Criminal Law

You'll also advance your Chinese language skills and gain an insight into Chinese politics and the Chinese economy.

Third Year

You'll spend your third year at a partner university in Beijing, China (Renmin University or the China University of Political Science and Law [CUPL]), where you'll take all modules through Chinese. You'll also study EU Law.

Fourth Year

On your return to UCD for the last year of the degree, you'll be required to complete a number of modules in Chinese law and to continue your Chinese language training. You'll also choose modules from a wide range of Irish law modules including clinical modules from the School's Clinical Legal Education Centre [CLEC].

Note: Some modules on this degree are taught through Chinese. The intensive nature of this degree means that you will not have time to take extra modules as part of UCD Horizons.

You'll attend lectures and tutorials, in addition to engaging in study and preparatory work.

Assessment is through a combination of end-of-semester examinations, essays and group work projects.

Career & Graduate Study Opportunities

Graduates obtain a recognised degree in Irish law and are also particularly well placed to pursue legal careers with:

- International law firms
- European and international institutions
- NGOs

BCL [Law & Chinese Studies] graduates may wish to pursue further studies, including: LLM [International Human Rights], LLM [International Commercial Law] or LLM [Intellectual Property & Information Technology Law], all in UCD Sutherland School of Law. Both Renmin and CUPL have excellent graduate programmes and are among the best law schools in China.

Imelda Maher
PROFESSOR

I came to UCD in 2006 – an academic homecoming as I am a BCL graduate. I had the rewarding experience of being academic director for the UCD Sutherland School of Law project. I worked closely with the architects and project team so the design of the building reflects what we actually do in the School. This is a long way from my usual day-to-day work of research and teaching. EU Law and Governance, especially competition law, is my area of expertise.

I introduce first years to EU Law, teach a master's course to law and politics students and I supervise a number of PhD students. My most recent research has led to a book: Asian Capitalism and the Regulation of Competition, published by Cambridge University Press, and edited by myself, John Gillespie [Monash University, Australia] and Michael Dowdle [National University of Singapore].

Why is this course for me?

This course allows you to obtain a highly respected degree in Irish law, whilst simultaneously acquiring a broad knowledge of economics. Certain areas of law [e.g. competition regulation and intellectual property] are heavily influenced by economic theory. BCL [Law with Economics] graduates are uniquely equipped to understand these regulatory frameworks in all of their conceptual complexity. On this degree, you'll embark on a field of cross-disciplinary study which is intellectually very demanding, but also tremendously enriching and of immense practical importance.

What will I study?

First & Second Year

First year focuses on core Irish law modules, including: Constitutional Law • Contract Law • Tort Law

In addition, you're introduced to the principles of macro- and micro-economics.

In second year, you will study:

EU Law • Property Law • Criminal Law

At the same time you'll also develop your understanding of economics and statistics.

Third & Fourth Year

With a wide choice of law and economics modules, you can choose to pursue your own areas of particular interest and tailor your degree through modules including:

Revenue Law • Intellectual Property Law • Trusts Law • Employment Law • Commercial Law • International Monetary Economics • Game Theory

You may select from the clinical law modules offered by our Clinical Legal Education Centre (CLEC), including Competition Law in Practice and Alternative Dispute Resolution.

You'll attend lectures and tutorials, in addition to engaging in study and preparatory work.

2013 Law graduates Lisa Barnwell, Cormac Golden and Maria Dolan

Assessment is through a combination of end-of-semester examinations, essays and group work projects.

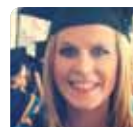

Career & Graduate Study Opportunities

BCL [Law with Economics] graduates have an attractive skill-set which is of undisputed relevance to commercial legal practices and to businesses in Ireland and abroad. Recent graduates have found employment with leading law firms and businesses.

Graduates are also eligible to pursue further study in the fields of: Commercial Law • Intellectual Property • Economics • Law & Finance • Insolvency Law

International Study Opportunities

Many students take the opportunity of spending time abroad in their third year, at partner universities including the University of Western Australia, Perth and the University of Minnesota.

Anna Ní Uiginn
GRADUATE

The decision to study Law at UCD at both undergraduate and graduate level is one I have never regretted. During my third undergraduate year I had the opportunity to study through German in Berlin and to familiarise myself with an entirely different legal system. Subsequently I completed an LLM in the increasingly relevant area of Intellectual Property and Information Technology Law. Whilst studying for my master's at UCD, I tutored first and second year undergraduate students, and was also able to expand my knowledge of the law by sitting on the Editorial Board of the UCD Law Review. It was during my master's year that I secured a training contract with William Fry solicitors.

KEY FACT

In your third year you can avail of the opportunity to apply for work placements in law firms, NGOs or government departments.

UCD Law students win Gael Linn Bréagchúirt Uí Dhálaigh

Why is this course for me?

Law and politics are inextricably linked by the legislative process. Many UCD law graduates have progressed to political careers. Others have become high-profile political commentators. This course allows you to obtain a highly respected law degree, whilst also acquiring a deeper understanding of political theory and the political process.

What will I study?

First & Second Year

First year focuses on core Irish Law modules, including: Constitutional Law • Contract Law • Tort Law

In addition, you're introduced to political theory and Irish and international political systems.

In second year, you'll study:

EU Law • Property Law • Criminal Law

You'll also take modules that engage with political theory, comparative politics and international relations.

Third & Fourth Year

With a wide choice of law and politics modules, you can choose to pursue your own areas of interest. These include: Jurisprudence • Media Law • Human Rights Law • Contemporary Issues in Law & Politics • Foreign Policy • Political Economy • Middle East Politics

Clinical Legal Education Centre (CLEC) modules are also available, including Advocacy & Mooting, Alternative Dispute Resolution and The Lawyer, Professional Ethics & Legal Practice.

Law students are often very active in university politics and in the Students' Union. As a BCL [Law with Politics] student you may be interested in developing your practical skills through participation in the legal information clinics of the UCD Student Legal Service.

You'll attend lectures and tutorials, in addition to engaging in study and preparatory work.

Assessment is through a combination of end-of-semester examinations, essays and group work projects.

Career & Graduate Study Opportunities

BCL [Law with Politics] graduates are well equipped to pursue careers in:

- Legal practice
- Politics
- Broadcasting
- Journalism
- Legislative drafting (e.g. in Office of Parliamentary Counsel)
- Academia

Relevant graduate study programmes include:

International Human Rights • European Law & Public Affairs • International Relations

International Study Opportunities

Many students apply to spend time abroad during their third year at partner universities including the University of Minnesota, the Université de Fribourg, Switzerland and the University of Queensland, Brisbane.

UCD's Law with Politics degree is a great choice for those of you who are interested not only in how the law works in practice, but also in how our country and continent are governed. There is a great sense of collegiality not only between my classmates but between all the law school staff and students. Being a Bord na Gaeilge Scholar for the past four years and spending a year as Vice-Auditor of An Cumann Gaelach have helped make my time in UCD a truly engaging experience. Not many can say that they have mooted through Irish in the Supreme Court, helped organise a 5km run around campus and even organised an intervarsity Countdown quiz! I've also welcomed the President of Ireland and European Commissioner for Science and Research to speak at An Cumann Gaelach events.

The moot court (mock trial room) at UCD Sutherland School of Law

Why is this course for me?

Are you concerned about injustice in society – and interested in acquiring the skills and knowledge that will enable you to advocate change and to tackle social inequality? This course [the first of its kind in Ireland] is designed to allow you to acquire a highly respected law degree, whilst also gaining a detailed understanding of the social justice issues that are intended to be addressed by the legal system. On completion, you'll be uniquely equipped to offer a critical perspective on issues such as the adequacy of our criminal justice system, our family court structure and our industrial relations frameworks.

What will I study?

First & Second Year

First year focuses on core Irish law modules, including: Constitutional Law • Contract Law • Tort Law

It combines this focus with an introduction to normative theory on human rights, inequality and global justice.

In second year, you'll study:

EU Law • Property Law • Criminal Law

At the same time you'll also take modules to develop your understanding of gender theory, economic justice and social justice movements.

Third & Fourth Year

With a wide choice of law and social justice modules, you can tailor your studies by choosing modules that reflect your areas of interest. Modules include:

Criminological Theory • Environmental Law • Public International Law • Employment Law • Matrimonial Law • Family & Child Law • Childhood Inequalities • Racism & Anti-Racism

Clinical Legal Education Centre (CLEC) modules are also available, including Advocacy & Mooting, Alternative Dispute Resolution and The Lawyer, Professional Ethics & Legal Practice.

Throughout the four years of the degree, you'll participate in a specially designed Law and Social Justice Seminar.

You may get involved in UCD's Student Legal Service which offers legal information clinics to students.

You'll attend lectures and tutorials, in addition to engaging in study and preparatory work.

Assessment is through a combination of end-of-semester examinations, essays and group work projects.

Career & Graduate Study Opportunities

This degree will provide an ideal platform for careers in:

National and international NGOs as legal advisors or researchers • Public policy

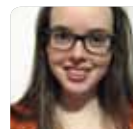

Relevant graduate study programmes include:

International Human Rights • Criminology • Equality Studies

International Study Opportunities

You can apply to spend third year at one of our partner universities including:

Australian National University, Canberra • University of New South Wales, Sydney • The University of Minnesota • The University of Miami • York University, Toronto

Órlaith Ní Mhadagáin
STUDENT

I chose to study Law with Social Justice in UCD as it is a unique law degree course which allows you to address social justice issues such as racism, homelessness, modern slavery and human rights. The two disciplines of law and social justice overlap and complement each other in a way that allows you to understand how the law can be used to combat these social injustices, and how in some ways it is being used to exacerbate them. Beyond academia,

UCD has a lot to offer through its clubs and societies. I am involved with the Law Society, the Student Legal Service, the Film Society and the LGH. So far it has been an amazing experience to be part of the UCD community, and I look forward to the rest of my time here.
